

Interview: Mr. Lacey
 This week the "Echoes" brings you an interview with Yo-Hi's disciplinarian/Vice Principal Mr. Lacey.

"Echoes": "How many students were suspended this year?"

Mr. Lacey: "There were 104 suspensions including people who were suspended two or three times."

"Echoes": "How many students were expelled this year?"

Mr. Lacey: "Four."

"Echoes": "What can the students of Yo-Hi do about the increase of stealing this year?"

Mr. Lacey: "If students would not bring anything of great value this would stop a lot of stealing. Next year students will be providing their own locks so only the student himself will know the combinations."

"Echoes": "What sex was the best during this year?"

Mr. Lacey: "The girls, and the reason for this is that girls generally mature more rapidly than boys so naturally they tend to act more mature."

"Echoes": "How long have you been here at Yo-Hi and will you be here next year?"

Mr. Lacey: "I have been here three years and I will most likely be here next year."

"Echoes": "As the school's disciplinarian do you believe in corporal punishment? Capital punishment?"

Mr. Lacey: "No, I don't believe in corporal punishment because I don't believe it solves many problems. For some it may work but not for most."

So far as capital punishment is concerned I am completely against it. Not because of moralistic reasons but because some people are charged wrongly. If a person commits a crime serious enough to be given capital punishment, instead of death I think this person should be committed to a permanent rehabilitation center. By killing this person we are only destroying the problem not solving it. Last of all I think that thirty guilty people should go free if it would stop one innocent person from being condemned!

"CAMELOT"

The Junior-Senior Prom, "Camelot", which was held last Friday at the Officers' Club, ended up one of the best in memory.

The reception line went quite smoothly (except it was a little hard trying to remember all the names of guests). The reception line started with Mr. & Mrs. Spaulding, Mr. & Mrs. Lacey, John Richardson & Sue Pease, Robert & Gale Albertson, Mark Hamill & Sue Wiesner, and Mr. Gagnon & Miss Donahue.

After the guests passed through the reception line, they were guided by the waiters to their tables. While people were enjoying dancing, the dinner was served: chicken noodle soup, salad, and Shishkabab with mashed potatoes and peas. The dinner was outstanding (except some people had a hard time taking the meat off the stick!).

The band of that night, "Eva and the Espionage", were exceptional. The dance floor was always crowded and everybody seemed to be enjoying themselves immensely.

The results of the queen and princess selection: Queen--Lavern Stansell, Senior princess--Terri Bolton, Junior princess--Lael Curran.

We would like to thank the junior class for this wonderful prom.

Great Prom, Juniors

The goal of the "Echoes" news page this year has been to inform you, the reader. This is not an easy job. All news must be reported four days before the paper comes out. That means that many articles must be written before an event has taken place or else the article appears eight to ten days after the event took place.

Another difficulty has been to get news. Some weeks not much happens, but the news page must be written every week.

The year is over now. We've tried our best to inform you. Only you know how well we have succeeded.

"Echoes" Staff

Summary of Sports

This year's sport record was not as impressive as last year's, but the school's spirit and sportsmanship was unsurpassable.

The outlook for next year is very promising. The wrap-up of this year's sports:

Football--2nd Place--10-2 (And humiliation of league champ Chofu in the final game of the season.)

Tennis--5th Place

Cross Country--6th Place--1-4

Basketball--2nd Place (Far East Tournament: 2nd 3-1)

Wrestling--4th Place (Far East Tournament: 5th)

Golf--5th Place

Baseball--2nd Place Tie 8-5

Track--7th Place--0-2-1

Yo-Hi also competed in the Speech contest and took a second. A surprise also was Yo-Hi taking a second in the one act play section.

Yo-Hi added three new sports to last year's schedule: Baseball, Track, and a Gymnastics team.

The overall picture is one to look back on and be proud of next year.

Second Place: Baseball

It was a short year for the Yo-Hi baseball team. Coached by Mr. Bird, the team had a thirteen game schedule, six double-headers, and one single game. Baseball season was quite different this year from previous years, because the coaches of the Kanto Plains High Schools got together and decided that they would play mostly double-headers and made each game five innings long. This gave baseball season a little extra added excitement, since instead of only seven games in the season, the teams would play thirteen games.

The opening of the season started for Yo-Hi when they met the Johnson Falcons for their first two games. They swept the double-headers taking the first game 14-13 and followed it up in the second game by winning 3-2.

The second games of the season were at Yokosuka and found Yo-Hi splitting the two games with Yamata, 14-12 and 13-12. The third game of the season was a double-header against the ASIJ Mustangs. They defeated Yo-Hi in both games, 4-1 and 8-3.

After ASIJ came a double-header with Narimasu, Yo-Hi winning 8-6 and then losing 6-3. The next game was the only single game of the season. Yo-Hi met Zama, and defeated them 5-4.

Following Zama came the league-leaders, Chofu, and Yo-Hi split a double-header with them, losing the first game 2-0 but winning the second game 10-7.

With a record of 6-5, the final games of the season were played against CAJ. Yo-Hi swept a double-header, 7-2 and 3-2. This brought their record to 8-5 over this season, and gave them a second place tie in the league.

Last TRACK REPORT

Though Yo-Hi's track team never took first place in a meet some of its members have shown talent. The track team's best athlete, to be sure, was Ron Smith. He showed how good he was from the very beginning of the season when he won the 440 at the first track meet, and then again at the second meet. At the Kanto Plains District meet held on May 7, Ron and Eugene Kaneshiro received silver medals for their excellent performances at the meet.

Congratulations to both of these fine athletes.

Pro On the drinking age

185
Con

I feel that the drinking age should be lowered from twenty-one, where it is now, to eighteen.

The average eighteen-year-old is a high school graduate and capable of drinking. If he's not, then his parents and teachers aren't what they should be.

If someone really wants to drink, then he'll find some way of getting alcohol illegally. So why not let them get it illegally? They are at a time of their life when they must learn to accept responsibility. By giving them a chance to prove themselves mature, they might develop into more experienced citizens.

I'm not saying that a free ticket to booze should be given to the under twenty age group. All I want are fair laws. After all, there are punishments for drunken driving, etc. If these were made stricter, the drinking age would be lowered with little or no effect on society.

Another reason for lowering the age for legally consuming alcohol is that the current restrictions put an air of mystery over intoxicating beverages. Because alcohol is forbidden it is all the more enticing. So what if someone gets drunk once or twice. It happens to nearly all of us at one time or another. With some of the mystery gone, people wouldn't be so eager to drink.

Drinking has been around for quite a while, so it's time that it is accepted. The reason some people drink is because it is not accepted by society. They are trying to be non-conformists, but if society would accept drinking then it would be no longer be a non-conformist's hang up.

It's pretty funny when a guy can go get shot-up for his country, but can't buy a bottle of beer. I think there's something wrong if that's the case, like it is in most of the states.

My page editor is pretty bad off, because she never knows what to assign us. We sit in class all day Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday with our minds in neutral. Then finally on Monday after we have wasted four days our editor comes out of her shell and assign us an article which is way beyond our brain capacity.

After that we sit on our seats for thirty minutes just thinking about how to start. Then I, personally, finally finish and she starts cussing me out because my article is only two lines long.

After I come back from the bathroom with dry eyes I have one minute to write my article. Then my editor takes it, prints it, and goes back into her shell for another four days.

Finally in third period Geometry on Friday I get the "Echoes" and a chance to see my eight lines. I am so happy that my lines got onto the page, maybe not the same eight lines, but they're my eight lines and I'm proud of them.

As you can see, my editor thinks she's great. All she does is sit on her derriere all period long. The typist also sits on his derriere all period and he has big juicy ears which filter out the page editors oral overflow as fast as it comes in. That is why it takes forever to get out this page.

Lowering the legal age to drink to eighteen would be a stupid thing to do. Most eighteen year old kids aren't mature enough to handle the responsibilities that go with being able to drink. They feel that drinking is just something to make you look real big and grown up. Well, they're pretty far from it.

Drinking is an accepted social practice for adults. These people are mature and know how to handle their liquor. An eighteen or nineteen year old kid would just want to go out and get drunk.

If society lets kids start drinking at such an early age they are just raising the rate of alcoholics in the United States. And maybe even the death rate. Put an intoxicated kid behind a steering wheel and you've got trouble.

So they can get alcohol illegally. Well, they are just breaking the law and this shows how immature they are. If they are mature they would accept and obey the law, even if they consider it unfair.

Once you reach twenty-one you have behind you years of experience and responsibility. You are capable of taking on responsibilities like voting and drinking. But first you must learn to accept laws.

Drinking is something which must always be maturely handled. Getting intoxicated seems to be accepted in the younger ages. This isn't a good idea because getting drunk is damaging to the body. In the later years of your life you could turn into an alcoholic. All of this would stem from drinking early in life.

Besides, if you do everything while you're young, when you're old, you'll have nothing left to look forward to.

On the Editors

Being a page editor is not an easy job, especially when you're editor of the hardest page on the "Echoes." I have tried to come up with interesting topics, but they're all too hard for the stupid people I have writing for me.

My staff writers (two) are really dumb. Every time I come up with something they say, "Oh, that's too hard." Then I'll ask what they want to write and they reply, "OH, I don't know." So I have to write everything!

What's really funny is that my entire staff is in higher grades than me, but act like refugees from a funny farm. At the beginning of the period, I'll assign an article and thirty minutes later all they'll have is "Pro" or "Con" written down. But I guess I shouldn't complain, because once one did come up with eight lines!

The typist is a smart-aleck, long-haired, beetle-browed idiot who thinks his word is law. His hair is always in his eyes so he just guesses what he's supposed to be typing.

That's why my page isn't exactly the greatest.

Interview

Poetry Corner.

(The second floor of Yo-Hi a secluded classroom. Time: Afternoon)

Interviewer: Well, fans, here we are again with another great interview. (A figure appears thrashing through piles of paper and graphs.) Excuse me, can you tell me where your teacher is?

Robert: I am the teacher. Could you please move? You're standing in the middle of my infinite binomial expansion to the power of...

Interviewer: Oh I am? Pardon me. But I don't see anything.

Robert: That's of no importance. It is still there. In fact, I can see them everywhere I look, and the functional curves that line the walls, and...

Interviewer: Yes, well, shall I move right or left?

Robert: Just stay there a minute. Maybe I can move it. (He scribbles furiously on some paper, and then sighs with relief.) Yea, it's possible, you see.... Let me explain the working....

Interviewer: Well, actually sir, I'm really just here to ask you a few questions concerning your teaching--

Robert: Oh, well in that case, let me explain some of my techniques to you. First of all, all those graphs: Those show in detail a number of interesting points related to my teaching. Now, you see this one here. This shows the number of hours in ten years that it would take two billion ants to carry peas in a geometric progression of two and....

Interviewer: Er, I see. That's fascinating. Yes. Could you please show me how you explain problems to your pupils? For example, if you are working out a problem on the board and....

Robert: Certainly. Here. Come this way...hey! Will you watch what you're walking into. Now, have a seat. You see this problem? Well you multiply this times this, and then you move that over this! What would the answer be?

Interviewer: Er, well I can't really say....

Robert: The answer is two! Don't you know why?

Interviewer: Uh....

Robert: Because this is equal to that times this. Now give me the square root of that. Well, it's this. You see, and then you factor all of it, and divide...using the formula. You do know the formula. Well it's that! Now, what is the factorial of the other one? (His voice is raised to a frightening pitch, and the poor little interviewer is gone....)

Black out!

You'll never forget her performance on "Mother Earth" a Memphis Slim song, or the slow, moddy "Down So Low," a gospel-like song with Tracy playing piano.

The band is beautiful, in city blues or gospel or country folk. Nobody here is yelling at you through mega-watt amps or noisy electronic gimmicks. It looks like there is a trend toward good feeling music and "Mother Earth" is the warmest I've heard since Big Pink. Run out and get Mother Earth Living With the Animals.

The Nineteenoon

(Narrated by Sir Balloon of the Moon)

There once was an enormous spoon
In the middle of a dry lagoon.
On it was a huge cocoon
Which I shot with my harpoon.

I once saw a young baboon
Going with an old raccoon.
They were married by a loon.
And quickly took their honeymoon.

I once saw a cute cartoon
In which a baby played a tune
On a long involved bassoon
During an immense typhoon.

I wouldn't stop so soon
If it wasn't so opportune,
But it would be importune
To write this trash past noon!

The Original Amalgamated Mind
The Play to See

The Skin of Our Teeth, by Thornton Wilder, is a very "different" sort of play in many ways. To begin with, there is no real plot or time sequence. The "actors," taking a variety of parts, often come through in their "real" selves and discuss the play with the audience.

In general, it is the story of a family, the "Antrobuses" and their beauty-queen maid Sabina. However, it soon becomes apparent that it is more a humorous look at the progression of mankind over the years.

The Antrobuses have two children--a girl, Gladys, and a boy, Henry. There are also several famous historical characters who appear in the play, including Moses, the three muses, and others, who have symbolic meaning. The Antrobuses represent "everyman and his wife."

This play, The Skin of Our Teeth is to be presented soon by the YADC. (Read the Bulletin Board in the hall for more information). There will also be two Yo-Hians making their debuts as prehistoric animals. As the dinosaur will be Julie Murfin, and as the Mammoth, Chris Helm.

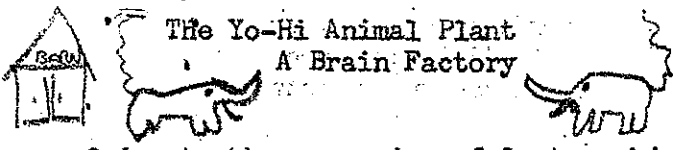

RECORD REVIEW

Mother Earth is full of some of the most emotional music you've ever heard. Think of your favorite singer: Grace Slick, Mama Cass, Janis Joplin. They're good. But try Tracy Nelson of Mother Earth. She's above them all.

She's also deeper into the roots than any of them. She's an original. Her voice is "ducky leather, tart strawberries."

JUNE 4th IS NEAR

In sixteen more days, on June 4th at 7:30, 86 members of the Senior Class of 1969 will take part in graduation ceremonies, a symbol of having successfully completed four years of high school.

The ritual will take place at the Yokohama Chapel Center where the diplomas will be presented by the President of the School Board, Mr. Ritter.

With the few remaining days of school the "Echoes" interviewed Mr. Gagnon, the Senior Class advisor, concerning this year's graduating class—their achievements, failures, and their future.

Mr. Gagnon: "I feel that the Senior Class of 1969 has left behind a memorial to itself and to the school in the form of the Japanese Garden. In addition to the garden the Senior Class is donating some $150 for additional scenery and garden furniture so that the Japanese Garden will be enjoyed by the future seniors as much as it was by the past seniors. This, I think, is a fine addition to Yo-Hi.

"In regards to the members of the Senior Class as individuals: There are some fine people in the class and many will excell and go far in the future."

The "Echoes" wishes to thank Mr. Gagnon and the Graduating Class of 1969 and wishes them the best of luck in their future life.

With the end of the year coming fast upon us we know that many of you are just dying to know what the great seniors of '69 will be up to next year. Here is a run down on what a few of your comrades will be doing.

George Pearson—plans to attend the Marine Engineers School at Baltimore, Maryland. After completing two years at the school, "Fish" plans to make a career out of the Merchant Marines.

Wes Koike—is going to be attending Otero Junior College at La Junta, Colorado. Wes plans to major in automatic data processing and go on to a career in computer work.

Jim Drazkowski—"Ski" plans to slave away this summer while loafing at his summer resort in the Black Hills of West Virginia. After his vacation he plans to enter University of West Virginia and major in riots and demonstrations.

Claude Campbell—"Brillo" is still going to be greeting you with his presence until January of next year when he will be returning to the States.

Rick Rankin—plans to get away from "Ski" as soon as possible. After escaping he will venture forth to Oregon where he will attempt the great college life with Ted Roper and Chi-Heng Kwan.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Dear "Echoes,"

I have been looking at the trophies in the trophy case. I feel that someone should clean them. Thanks.

Concerned Student

Dear "Echoes,"

Why don't you have a crossword puzzle in the "Echoes" once in a while for all of us crossword puzzle nuts?

Z.N.X.

Dear K.J., N.R., M.I., D.M., B.U., B.R., R.K., T.S., and others,

When the sun rises in the morning, and a person wakes up, he is faced with two choices. One is to forget the whole thing, pull the covers over his head, and go back to sleep. The other is to get up and face the challenge of a new day. If after making the second choice he finds the going too rough, he can always go back to bed and the comforts that sleep brings.

Such a "sun" rose on Friday, May 2, and I made the second choice. I chose to say what I knew had to be said--that Mike was right.

Funny thing about me though, after I have gotten up, I never go back to bed.

Jim Uber

Dear "Echoes,"

My father is on my back. He wants me to get a job, but I have a problem--where do you get a job? I haven't heard anything about anyone else getting a job. So, what I want to know is, where, when, and how I can get a job.

Unemployed

Dear Unemployed,

Inquire at the Yokosuka P.X. employment office, North Pier C.P.O., the Merchant Marines, or MSTIS C.P.O. (See the next Trident for more details.)

Editor

Dear Editor,

I would like to comment and make a few corrections in the letter that appeared in last week's issue concerning the Junior Field Trip.

One, there wasn't one big booze party. There were several "parties" held. Those in the other parties didn't get caught. Those who were caught were unlucky.

Two, the great savior of the day had previously indulged in the merry-making before reporting the others. I am not knocking his actions--his intent was great--his method bad.

It is unfortunate that these parties took place. It was immaturity on the part of those involved. I guess the temptation was too great for them. I am happy to note that the parties never really got out of hand. The wild stories were mere exaggerations as usually is the case with anything that anyone hears around here. Nevertheless, it is over with. Those involved seem to have learned their lesson, and can be trusted in the future.

As to Jim Uber's letter, it was informing. However, before he writes a letter as controversial as his previous one, he should be sure to get all the correct facts. He will avoid undue criticism. Thank you.

A. Faithful Reader

Wow! UBER, NOT AGAIN

Dear "Echoes,"

At the beginning of this school year, a few people wrote letters asking if we were going to get a bowling team this year. What happened to that great idea? As I see it, this would be a great sport at Yo-Hi. We have many good bowlers at this school and we could probably beat any other school in the Far East. Bowling is just as good a sport as football, basketball, track, or tennis. So, why can't we have a bowling team?

It's too late for this year, but we can still get it started for next year.

A. Bowler

Dear A. Bowler,

See Mr. Carpenter for information.

"Echoes"

Dear "Echoes,"

I have just about had it with the students at this school. Everyone is a snob. It seems to me that everyone thinks he is better than everyone else. They act as if they are too good to be talked to. I think I read somewhere that "all men are created equal." To the students at Yo-Hi this is a false statement. What's getting bad is the teachers are beginning to think this way too. Soon no one will be talking to each other, and, this, "gentlemen," I want to see. Can't you imagine a high school with no talking, especially at Yo-Hi. Some people are going to strangle to death because they put their noses up so high that bugs are going to fly up them.

No Snob

Dear "Echoes,"

Friday night, after the prom, it seemed to me that everyone else was going out and getting drunk. How could juniors and seniors in high school be so immature. What they did didn't prove a thing. I don't know why anyone would spend such good money on such a bad idea. It seems to me that they could have taken their date out to dinner after the prom without getting bombed. Thank you.

A Nondrinker

Dear "Echoes,"

Monday while sitting in the cafeteria, I saw some juniors and seniors playing in there. They weren't playing cards or anything like that; they were throwing food at each other. If this isn't immature, I don't know what is. No one wants to eat lunch in there if people like that are running around. Please print this, so it may give these babies a hint.

A Hungry Student

THE NEW PLAN FOR THE CLAUDE OF 1941

During his surprise visit to Yo-Hi last week, Mr. Joseph Blackstead, Head of Far East Independent Schools, announced his plans for a new school lunch program to be instituted here in a short while. Said the noted administrator, "When I was here two months ago, I caught dysentery at the Cafeteria. The month before that I got a case of Intestinal Flu at the Teen Club. I can imagine what the students are going through."

The new lunch program will be available to all students, military and non-military, for the price of 30¢ or 100 yen. Apologized Mr. Blackstead, "Costs are going up and we are unable to provide the lunches at the price we'd like to." He added, "A typical meal would consist of hors d'oeuvres, a soup course, a salad course, a fish course, a choice of entree, a dessert, as well as an abundant supply of fruit and assorted rolls. We'll see to it the students get their money's worth."

Heading the new cafeteria will be Miss Barbra Eberbaugh, who said, "I never get a chance to cook as much as I'd like to, and besides, I don't have that much to do anyway." Miss Eberbaugh will arrive at school at 7:00 AM to supervise the preparation of the lunch, and while she is in class will leave the food in the care of three Japanese cooks, currently on leave from the "U" Club, where they prepared the Senior Banquet.

Projected meal for the first day, which will serve as an introduction for the coming months, will consist of Oxtail Soup; Pate de Fois Gras, Caviar on Skewers and other hors d'oeuvres; Caesar Salad with choice of eight dressings; Filet of Snapper with Cream Sauce and Truffles; a choice of entrees between Filet Mignon or Pheasant Under Glass; and a choice from either the Danish or French pastry tray for dessert. Said Miss Eberbaugh, "This is just a starting point you understand; maybe we can get a little more variety in the future."

Principal Douglas M. Spaulding said, "The Navy dispensary has warned us against too rich a diet, but we figured this would be our only chance to dig into government funds, so we're booting the works."

The new kitchen and restaurant, to be created in the mode of Maxim's famous restaurant, will feature a cozy intimate atmosphere, restfully lit by candlelight. Contractors, believe that they can have the building built in a little under a year. They plan to build the entire structure out of Black Walnut wood which is to be imported from Rumania. The linen will be purchased from the Brussels Lace Corporation and the antique glassware will be procured from Sweden, as will the four twenty-foot chandeliers, made entirely of green crystal.

After undergoing a four-week training program, Yo-Hi's teachers will serve as waiters, with Mr. Roy Clumpner sweeping as Maitre d'. Said Coach Clumpner, "This is the most sensible approach to a school lunch program I've run across yet. I'm particularly looking forward to introducing the students to the world's finest wines." The school plans to have a 40,000 bottle wine cellar, with vintages ranging from medieval times to recent years. Students will be allowed to select the wine which they feel most enhances their meal.

Pending construction of new building, meals will be prepared in the Faculty Kitchen and served in the classrooms after 3rd period has been dismissed.

Monthly tickets will go on sale tomorrow at a discount price and will be sold throughout the year. Meal tickets are still available individually at the aforementioned price for students who still wish to bring their own lunches most of the time.
