

SENIORS! MONEY!

For those seniors who are interested in obtaining scholarships, the Yokohama Armed Forces Wives Club is giving these opportunities to you. They are presenting four $750 and one $1000 scholarship. These scholarships are for those who are going to any advanced schooling.

If any of you want to know more about the program, application forms can be picked up at the office. All forms must be filled out by April 17.

Cafe price rise

This week we interviewed Mr. Perkins, the exchange manager in Yokosuka, about the rise in food prices.

The main reason for upping food prices is the re-valuation of the yen. Since the yen was re-valued, the Japanese workers get more money. The cafeteria can't lose money and the Japanese workers are on a set contract.

Another reason for the rise in food prices is because prices are going up in the States.

The dock strike was another cause; the exchange has to pay more to get products over by plane.

One way Yo-Hi can keep these price rises to a minimum is to take care of equipment in the cafeteria. Every time something has to be replaced, the overhead for running the cafe goes up.

Prom in Progress

For you who are curious about the Junior-Senior Prom this year, the Junior Class is still working on the situation.

The location will most likely be at the Seafarer (Yokosuka Base), but there is a possibility that it is going to be at the Yokohama Officers' Club.

The Prom committees have been busily working on various jobs that must be taken care of in order to make this year's prom successful. The committees are now at work on the exact location, as well as the date, theme, invitations, food, entertainment, decorations, etc.

Painful Possibilities

This week, the "Echoes" interviewed Mr. Spaulding on the proposed new procedures for attendance.

Concerning the suspension policy here at our school, he said that after a student has been suspended twice for truancy, he could be listed at the school's office and listed to the base authorities as a "truant." He also mentioned that once a student is listed as a "truant," the base authorities may determine to deny him access to the base.

"If they do this, the student will be incapable of attending school because of his repeated truancy."

Even being suspended for skipping detention might be considered a truancy.

Another course of action proposed to fight the chronically truant is the lifting of bus privileges.

Definite rules will be published soon.

BAND BANTEY

The Yo-Hi school band is presently working in preparation for a band concert. Members of the Kinnick Middle School and of the Sullivan Middle School will also be playing with our band. The concert will be held in the Benny Decker Theater in Yokosuka at 6 p.m. The date will be announced later. There will be eight band numbers and three or four vocals. No admission will be charged.

ALI DUMPS FOSTER

Saturday, April 1, 1972, there was a great heavy-weight boxing match held at Budokan in Tokyo between Mac Foster and Muhammed Ali. The winner of this match will eventually challenge the heavy-weight champion, Joe Frazier.

The match was held at 12:00 p.m. with some spectators from Yo-Hi present. Ali's prediction was a knock-out in the fifth round, but he couldn't make it and finally settled for a fifteen round decision.

Ali next fights George Chuvalo of Canada.

The week before Easter vacation, Mr. Steinman contacted the acting and singing groups to discuss plans for rehearsals after the vacation....The vacation in a way prevented the acting and singing departments from co-ordinating their first rough performance....This week the children's chorus was called as well as a few soloists including those who play the parts of "Mr. Bumble" and "Nancy."... Musical Mode ⁰⁰ by B.D.

There is one thing all music has in common—it consists not only of notes, but also note sentences, which are made up of notes. These sentences in turn make up phrases or musical paragraphs which in turn make up a total composition or a movement similar to a chapter in a book.

These paragraphs say things. You have probably often times heard a song that you like but don't really know the reason why. It is almost a sense of emotion which the language of words is unable to comprehend. This is true with almost all rock music. With the exception of the lyrics, one can only understand and like the music by letting the music flow through his head and soul. The lyrics provide the listener who thinks linearly with an expression of emotion through the logical medium. The musician thinks much differently than the listener when he composes music. The musician uses music as an outlet for his inhibitions—a way to express his inner emotions.

If you love rock groups, you notice the apparent emotion that pours out when they move around the stage. This is by no means their total expression of emotion. Their expression of emotion is essentially through their music. The extremes of sound aid in their expression of emotion by enabling them to physically "feel" what is being played.

Other groups, using more conventional means of expression, depend on words to express themselves and keep their back-up music soft and simple. Still others combine the two and get something which many people think is more desirable—a union between lyrics and music.

Three Dog Night uses the latter quite effectively in their arrangements of either softer, more wordy songs, or louder, more instrumental songs. By using this they have become very popular among almost everyone who likes music.

Emerson, Lake, & Palmer use a style different from any other—they use a style similar to that of Baroque music which is the conglomeration of quick melodic lines to form emotion. Their rock style of Baroque characteristics is very likable, and, sometimes, through the expert use of many electronic and special effects, really freaky! Their composition, "Tarkus," is a very good example of this mixing of rock and Baroque music. They do a mixed variety of other compositions, many of them humorous in both music and words.

Chicago synthesizes the American Jazz style with rock to form jazz-rock. By using horns, they are able to express themselves more freely because there are less limitations as to what sounds can be reproduced.

Grand Funk Railroad has reached its fame by doing almost nothing musically. Its popularity is due to its profound simplicity of repetitions and its lyrics. (Maybe the minds of those who praise Grand Funk are too simple for anything else. Their lyrics are good but their musical repetitions are very boring.)

Elton John uses well the good ol' American ballad style for his compositions, which has always appealed to the American public young and old. By dusting in a little rock style, he has produced some very good and likable compositions. They are quiet and the lyrics are meaningful.

There are many other groups using many of the above styles and also some unique styles, some appealing to your tastes and some not. All music in the professional world has something good about it and if one is willing to let himself listen, he can find enjoyment in almost any kind of music, eliminating many complaints frequently heard today.

Who is it?

The M.A. this week is an unattached junior, weighing 170 lbs., standing 5'9" with blond hair. He played guard on Yo-Hi's great football team and is now playing catcher on the baseball team. He lifts weights after school.

He plans to move to Alaska with his family in May. He can usually be seen fighting with G. Valdex—or cutting Angus B., Sak, or S. Kubiak.

If you haven't guessed who it is yet, see the bottom of this page for the name.

Thinclads At Work

The "Echoes" interviewed Mr. Miller, the 1972 Yo-Hi track coach, and found out that he is lots more than just a math teacher. He's always been interested in track "because it gives each individual a chance to compete in his own particular event."

Track practice began on Monday, March 13. Our track stars spent the first week on conditioning exercises and jogging. During the second week, they were to hold tryouts, but from what we've heard there weren't any. Now, they are concentrating on individual events in preparation for the upcoming track meets.

Track isn't just running. In our league we have: shot put, discus, high jump, long jump, pole vault, 100 yard, 222 yard, 440 yard, 880 yard, mile, two mile, 110 high hurdles, 180 low hurdles, and two relays, the 4x220 and the 4x440.

When asked if girls could compete, Mr. Miller said that he didn't think the rules allowed it but that if enough were interested it could be checked into. They would probably compete in an all girls' track meet.

Good luck to Mr. Miller and to all the track team.

Everyone complains that our teams this year haven't been very good, but the "Echoes" Editorial staff has decided to let you know a thing or two. Granted that our football team and our basketball team didn't do so hot, (even though they tried hard), but we must not forget our less glamorous teams which are in no way less important in representing our school.

First, there is the Girls' Tennis team which took a silver and a bronze medal at the Kanto Plains Tennis Tournaments, in Tokyo. Second, is our wrestling team, which had one matman place first in the Kanto Plains, here at Thew Gym. Our gymnastics team is still roaring away with several first, second, and third place gymnasts.

Let's go out and support our new track and baseball teams and see them both get a first place.

classical music lover (or if you parents are), you will remember the feeling that the thunder has in Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, its feeling of presence and being, its emotional impact being so close. But move it away by reducing its intensity, and it will cause the same emotion to you as dropping a book. The same holds true for rock listeners. Turn Grand Funk down and you'll probably be rocked to sleep by its repetitions. The music was performed loud and should be reproduced loud! Try recording a real honest-to-goodness scream and then play it back at low volume. Does the scream sound like the same emotional scream that you recorded? Not really—it sounds more like a sick cat!

It does make a difference what volume level your reproductions are played at; it's a good excuse for you to keep that volume up and one less for your parents.

ANTIGONE HITS

Last week the assembly was the Senior Class play, Antigone. It was supposed to be a sad Greek drama, but some of the characters and actions, (especially those of the two guards) made the play appealing to all.

According to most reports the play really was a success.

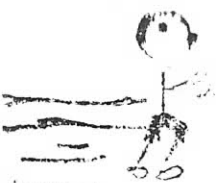

We hope that further assemblies will be as enjoyable.

Beethoven is a Bopper!

Do you realize just what you are doing when you adjust the volume control on your stereo set? Read this and you will have a valid reason for complaining when your parents tell you to "turn it down."

The act of reducing the volume on a given musical passage affects the mind of the listener. The music isn't at all the same as it was performed. If you are a

WOMEN'S LIB...

Dear "Echoes,"

I am writing in to comment on Antigone, the play presented last Friday (the last week before vacation). I feel that it was very well done and I would like to congratulate the people involved for a "job well done." Mara Maguire did a great job as Antigone and I would just like to thank her and the rest of the cast for putting on a really great play that I enjoyed very much.

A Yo-Hian

Dear "Echoes,"

I heard recently that our former secretary, Mrs. Wheat, was injured in a car accident off-base, and that a friend of hers was killed. Is this propoganda true or is it just another rumor?

Concerned

Dear Concerned,

Yes it is true. Mrs. Wheat is in Yokosuka hospital now, with a broken leg and collar bone. On behalf of the Temper of the Times page, and the "Echoes," we wish Mrs. Wheat a speedy get well.

GET WELL...

Dear "Echoes,"

What ever happened to powderpuff? As long as I have been here at Yo-Hi, there has been a powderpuff game, between juniors and seniors, and one between freshmen and sophomores. What has happened? Will there be a game, or not? If there is a game, when will it be? We have been wondering for a long time, and we don't think it very fair to have it cancelled. The freshmen and sophomores went through a lot of HELL, trying to get the gym for practices, and practicing. Please answer this if you know any information.

Inquiring...

Dear Inquiring,

As far as we know, there will not be a powderpuff game this year between the sophomores and the freshmen. The game was set for February, but with the bad performance at the talant show it was cancelled. It may be scheduled at a later date, but it hasn't yet to our knowledge.

Dear "Echoes,"

I am writing this letter to say that some people around here don't care about the Snack Bar pin ball machines. When a person goes over to play the pin ball machines, they can't because someone has tried to get a free game off it, consequently lousing up the machine for future use. Or there will be catsup all over the glass, so it is impossible to even watch what you are doing. I think some people should show a little courtesy to the Base Snack Bar for a change.

FEMALE PARTICIPATION IN TRACK

A girl beats you out in the 100 yard dash...it could happen to you!

PROS: Student equality has played a large factor in some schools. Should girls be allowed in high schools' major sports? Let's take track for example. Female participation on the track team should depend on the individual's ability. Is she good enough to compete with the guys? Can she take the vigorous training to excel in track? If she could improve the team's chances and make the team more competitive, why not?

CONS: It would certainly be a blow to a boys morale to be beaten out for a position on the track team by a girl. (For example, say Maria is running in the 100 yard dash and so is John. Maria comes in first with a time of 10.6 while John comes in fifth out of nine places with a time of 12.4. Obviously she wins his spot on the team.) All females want to be considered equal to the male in certain things. Is track something for the female to compete against the male? Aren't there a million other ways she could show her equality with males? Boys, beware, you soon may have to beat out your sister or even your girlfriend to make the track team.

How many of you can truthfully say that you respect your parents? I mean when your parents tell you to do something do you do it and ask questions later? Parents are people too you know. They have feelings (believe it or not) just as we do. They can be hurt just as much as we can be.

You say, "Well, I think that parents should try to understand us," but how many of you try to look at your parents' side. Maybe that's why there is such a big generation gap—because the parents think that the teens are purposely trying to rebel against them. And the teens don't stop for a minute to think why the parents think like they do.

Temper of the Times

As I was walking down the hall during one of my resource centers, my nose caught the smell of FOOD! I entered the home ec. room, since the smell came from that room. There I met some boys of Miss Sattre's cooking classes. I decided to interview them and taste some of their food.

Don Roper was busy making a tuna fish sandwich, while Jack Woodard was using his talents making a pan of cream of mushroom soup. I asked them how many members were in their group and they said four. I asked them where the other two were and they pointed to Greg Valdez, who was standing by idly, waiting for the food to get cooked.

Don considers Greg the laziest of the group. He is supposed to be the Chief Dishwasher, but all he ever does is eat and talk. The fourth member, Brian Ching, rarely makes it to class, because he is always chasing his true love down the halls.

I must admit that the food they made was pretty good. If I live after this article I plan to take the course myself.

ZIT EATERS
(the school psychiatrist), to tell him about the supreme race of Boppers, in which he is readily put down as insane and egotistic. (Don't laugh, it's true.)

Scene III

He leaves the office madly and struts to the Western front to command his Storm Troopers. Standing on the tables, the flourescent lights glitter off his helmet and sunglasses. He listens to the Boppers yell "Heil Wright." At this instant, 1000 zit-eating moths attack Adolf and put an end to his dream. (If Aldolf Wright were still living, we feel that he should go to the Middle School and teach Wrightism there.)

Scene IV

All you readers may think that the fantastic Adolf died from the zit-eating moths, but really all they gave him was a superiority complex. His helmets, shades, and gloves, are stored in a closet in case of another new battle for Wrightism. Seeing that he can't run around nude, he wears a magnificent white canvas bush jacket, just as his African Corps wore. He has adorned it with many of his medals including his First Class Boy Scout badge. The cause of this attire is his victory over the zit-eating moths and Wrightism.

Scene V

The allied powers Rob Fetters, Bob Skord and Angus Bozeman, have sworn to put an end to Wrightism. As Rex is walking towards the Eastern front (the school), the allies see him and throw him into the pond. Though the pond is only two feet deep, the medals adorning his jacket, drown him under. As he sinks, we hear him preach the last words of Wrightism and a threat, "Wrightism and Bopperism go hand in hand."

All we can do is hope that the threat will never materialize.
