Mother's Day 2024

CHAIRMAN'S COMMENTS

This is my last Chairman's Comments. I have resigned the position as explained in an email to the Board and advisors. While it was an honor to be your Chairman, the time has come.

Hello Officer or advisor,

First, do me a favor. RSVP to let me know you read this. This is not an easy email to write. After months of trying to "beat my head against the wall" to get the 2024 reunion together, trying to get others to follow or at least respond, I decided last night to resign as Chairman. When Larry asked me to take the position, I consulted Bill Sims, former Chair. He said it was a cushy job, so I took it. Then came the pandemic, a member revolt, a name change, a couple reunions when I could not get local help, and dozens of Comments. Yesterday, I received a text from Rick Hernandez (Vice Chairman) from his contact in Pensacola that it is already too late to book a block of rooms in September, so it looks as if we will not have a reunion, myworst case scenario. This was "the straw that brock the camel's back." We simply got behind the eight-ball trying to get and make decisions. I had sent out a group email several weeks ago that I asked for responses and got absolutely zero returns. Maybe I am not as good at persuading as I thought I was. Emotionally, I can only do so much, and this is the end. I will remain a member but will not attempt to lead. Boyd Huddleston wants to organize the 2025 reunion in the Seattle area, and I will assist him on that. So, this time it is sayonara, not Mata ne." Maybe I will see you at a reunion. Former Chairman of the Board Alan Werner

The official military brat flower is the dandelion. Now you might be wondering, why a dandelion or why there should be such a thing, however it holds a significant meaning that describes us perfectly.

The dandelion itself is very much like a military brat. Its seeds can be scattered by the wind and puts its roots down anywhere. The dandelion adapts to life among other plants and can survive in just about any location. If this is not the perfect comparison to military brats then I don't know what is!

Below I have found an awesome poem written by Patti Neal Cadwallader. Enjoy!

Dandelion you're like me Set adrift to ride the breeze Drifting here and settling there To grow as if you have no care Only those like you will know The sudden rush to rise and go On any current you will flow On any weathered wind you'll blow In any sea, on any tide On any ground, you will abide And you never do decide Just where you'll go, or how you'll ride Around the world, among all kinds Flying with no tie that binds Always leaving friends behind Trying not to show you mind Dandelion I'm like you! Of my future, I've no clue! I put down roots that have no glue So, I'll move to somewhere new.

He died February 12, 1971, of wounds received December 25, 1970, in Vietnam. He was leading a platoon in hostile territory.

He was born in Tacoma, Washington and attended the University of Washington and Western Washington State College. He posthumously was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart for wounds received. 61 (60-61) The Coronado Times

July 22, 2023

Prepared by

Roy Dernard Quady

Ensign John Webster McCormick, Jr. was born into a Navy family on January 9, 1944, in Newport, Rhode Island. He was the first child of John 'Jack' Sr., USNA Class of 1935, and Marjory 'Jerry' McCormick. John was a 1957 graduate of Sacred Heart School and attended Coronado High for his freshman year. He graduated in 1961 from Nile C. Kinnick High School in Yokohama, Japan, and from Villanova University in Pennsylvania where he completed Naval ROTC.

In September 1965, he was sworn into the Navy by his uncle, Rear Admiral James McCormick. He left for Vietnam on October 1, 1966, and volunteered to serve with the 3rd Marine Division as a Naval Gunfire Liaison Officer in connection with operations against insurgent communist forces in the Republic of Vietnam. On May 18, 1967, during Operation Beau Charger, John was killed during a heavy enemy mortar attack. He was 23 years old and had participated in 12 prior operations.

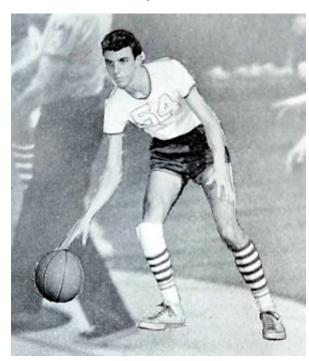

John was posthumously awarded the Silver Star, the third highest military award for acts of gallantry in combat against an enemy of the United States.

The citation reads, in part:
"Ensign McCormick fearlessly exposed himself to intense fire to direct and adjust supporting fires against enemy entrenchments. Maneuvering his gunfire-spotting team into more advantageous positions from which to observe friendly fires, he courageously disregarded his own safety while he moved from one position to another, encouraging his men and adjusting supporting fires with exceptional accuracy. As enemy fire intensified, Ensign McCormick directed his men to covered positions while he continued to expose himself to the hostile fire to adjust friendly artillery missions. Although he sustained severe fragmentation wounds, he refused assistance and, urging his men to remain in their relatively secure positions, maintained radio contact with friendly artillery."

The Great Devil Debate

Some of you alumni may not be familiar with the "Devil Debate" that took place several times over the years. Jim Hyatt, the person that created the FSA and established the online Yo-Hi Red Devils websight, provided a lengthy account of the debate over the Devil mascot. Read the account below.....

"From time to time over the past 30 years or so, elements of our society have chosen to initiate actions which would change (eliminate) our red devil image and team name to something else for a variety of reasons -- and with that perhaps change the school colors as well. The primary thrust of each action to change our 50 plus year-old identity has to do with a perception in the minds of certain individuals that THE YOHI RED DEVIL is EVIL, and as such, results in an embarrassment to those connected to the school -- and even is the cause of why some sports activities are lost to its competitors.

We know from conversations with alumni that they witnessed these actions as far back as the 1970's. It has not been possible to document those past actions, so we begin the story starting in 1993 with an extract from the 1993 "Echoes" as follows:

'ECHOES' - Volume 18 No. 6 - 15 June 1993 Nile C. Kinnick High School -Yokosuka, Japan

Editorial 1 by Lee Ferinden READ THIS !!!

FOREVER A DEVIL. Some people think that as a senior, I should have no voice in the decision on this issue. The initial request of some parents who objected to the use of the Red Devil as the school mascot was to let the sixth graders at Sullivan's School vote and exclude the seniors at Kinnick graduating in June. If our mascot were changed, it would not be possible to remove it from all uniforms, jackets, rings, annuals, etc. for at least four years. Since this is the case, why not let the whole elementary school vote? They'll be here eventually. Or send ballots to transferring students in the states? I think as a senior I earned the right to vote. Five years of practicing, sweating, and screaming at sports events, both as a participant and as a spectator for the Nile C. Kinnick Red Devils, and yet to some I have not earned the right to vote for a school mascot that has been near and dear to my heart.

However, this request was not honored and the school administration did allow us to express our opinion in the poll. This entire controversy is based on the beliefs concerning the "devil" in some Christian religions. I am not a Christian myself nor do I have anti-Christian beliefs. I have always respected other's beliefs and religious practices, but the Red Devil was chosen as the school mascot to depict a strong, fierce figure to encourage school spirit, unity and pride. It was not chosen for religious reasons or to insult any religion, and as it should not be eliminated for religious reasons. Words have a variety of meanings, and we should look at how a majority views the word, not a minority. Regardless of all the above, this issue seems very unimportant to me if taken in the total context of teenagers and their parents lives here in Yokosuka. As a parent of four put it, "If I could have raised my teenagers and only have to worry about a school mascot, I'd still have all my hair."

The time and energy used on this issue, from the School Advisory Committee, to the poll, to possibly even writing this article, would probably have been far better off spent addressing child abuse, drug abuse, family unity, or a myriad of other subjects that teenagers at this school must live with everyday. It is not the school mascot that causes teens or parents problems, it is merely a harmless symbol to encourage school spirit and pride. In conclusion, even if the vote had gone the other way and the Red Devil had been dropped as the school mascot, it would still always remain the mascot in the minds of us, the students. All our memories would still be us hand-in-hand in the Homecoming Parade where our Red Devil was prominently displayed on our floats, at the bonfires where we burned other school's mascots while we viewed ours with pride, our smiles, hugs, and tears as we shouted Red Devils are number one when we took the football championship, our chill bumps, and pride as We watched the Red Devil band march on the field at halftimes, our thrill as we put on our Red Devil letterman's jackets for the first time, our joy when we received our class ring, and, in my case at least, how honored I have felt as a soccer. volleyball, and basketball player when I heard my fellow students, parents, and community yell, "GO DEVILS!" as I run on the court or field. As a senior, I thank you fellow Red Devils, for the wonderful times at this school, my memories that can never be taken away. They have proved by allowing us to vote on this issue that they are indeed training us to be members of a democracy, where the majority rules.

Editorial 2 by Lee Ferinden THE DEVIL STAYS

MAJORITY VOTES TO KEEP MASCOT. As many of you are aware, a controversy recently arose over our school mascot, the Red Devil. Students, teachers and parents were polled by the school administration on whether they felt that Red Devil was an appropriate mascot due to concerns voiced at the Schools' Advisory Committee meeting. Changing a mascot is not an easy matter. First, our mascot is on just about everything relating to the school. The Red Devil is pictured on our patches, sweatshirts, tee shirts, uniforms, letterman's jackets and class rings as well as many other forms of advertisement. The Red Devil has been a form of motivation and school pride for its entire 47-year history. I personally have never thought about the devil as the opposite truth, a belief in sickness, sin and death, the leader of evil, or the like as this is only one definition of the word. As defined in Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary the devil also means a person of notable energy, recklessness and dashing spirit. This has always been what the devil has meant to me and always will be. Parents, students and teachers voted overwhelmingly to keep the Red Devil as our mascot. The majority of teachers, 72% of parents and 78% of the students voted to retain the Red Devil. The percentages to change the mascot were 12% of the teachers, 21% of the parents and 7% of the students, with the remainder having no opinion. So, the vote is in, the issue is settled. Go, Devils, go!

THE NEXT ACTION 19 MARCH 1999

I, James Hyatt, discovered another effort within the Yokosuka "Community" and Nile C. Kinnick school system was taking place to replace the 51year-old "Red Devil" as it's mascot/logo/team name. It appears that the issues are basically the same facts as enumerated directly above. This was the first time in history that the alumni were sufficiently organized to participate in this action-- albiet uninvited. We now had a means by which alumni comments could be collected and provided to the school students faculty, and parents for review. Thus, I wrote a letter to the alumni in general advising them of the above and encouraged them to make comments for consideration of that issue by the "school". Those comments would be placed on the web site, with "author" names removed, and the Principal, Nile C. Kinnick High School, and others were advised that they would be available for them starting in a few days. Initially, I chose to impose a "suspense date" for receipt of those comments. It was believed that the actions at Yokosuka were near a decision point -- which subsequently proved false. Listed below are the comments received and posted to the web site during the period 24 to 31

* * 1 * *

March 1999 [the "suspense" date]:

Regarding the matter of the YOHI mascot, I can only imagine that it was chosen as an icon especially for the school's sports teams, and that it was selected to represent an ominous force with which to be reckoned as on the field of "combat". As one who now holds deep religious beliefs, the idea of promoting evil in any way holds no appeal for me, so I can empathize with those who may be thinking along those lines.
